

I would like to voice my strong support for RM-10352. This band has more than adequate space for SSB above 1840 and is consistent with international use of this lower portion for CW/narrow band digital modes. This lower portion is actively used, among other things, for weak signal communications that are easily disrupted.